

Donald Trump has won the 2024 presidential election, becoming the 47th president of the United States. This victory marks a significant political comeback for Trump, who previously lost the 2020 election to Joe Biden. In the 2024 election, Trump defeated Vice President Kamala Harris, securing at least 301 electoral votes, surpassing the 270 needed for victory [\[1\]\[2\]](#).

Key highlights from the election results include:

- Trump reclaimed several battleground states that he lost in 2020, including Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin [\[2\]](#).
- His victory in Georgia was particularly notable, as he had lost the state by a narrow margin in 2020 [\[2\]](#).
- Trump also won Nevada, a state that had not gone Republican since 2004 [\[2\]](#).

Kamala Harris has conceded the election but has vowed to continue fighting for the issues that fueled her campaign [\[3\]](#).
